Paper Tigers & Biblio-Beasts: Creatures in the Collections
Hill Memorial Library: Upper and Lower Main Galleries
The relationship between humans and (other) animals is complex and ever-changing. Human fascination with our companions on the planet is well documented in the rare books, photographs, historical documents and print materials that are housed within LSU Libraries Special Collections. This highly visual menagerie of sorts represents centuries of historical materials that touch on almost every aspect of human/animal interaction. Paper Tigers and Biblio-Beasts features works on a variety of topics, from the economically important creatures that colored our world with Carmine Red and Tyrian Purple dyes, to 19th century efforts to promote animal welfare.
