Weekly Announcements

For the Week of August 3

New GTA Virtual Workshop Now Available

The Graduate School, in collaboration with LSU's Learning & Teaching Collaborative and experienced graduate teaching assistants, has developed a fully on-line orientation program for new Graduate Teaching Assistants. The Virtual GTA Workshop consists of 9 modules covering a wide variety of topics using videos, links to other resources, and reflective questions. While designed as a whole program you can visit the modules in any order.

Please note that the LSU Office of Diversity's virtual training session, Diversity 101, is scheduled to take place on Friday, August 7 at 11am via Zoom. Meeting ID: 975 5341 0231/Password: LSUGTA.

We hope this new support program is helpful. Good luck this semester!

Theses & Dissertation Email Reviews

In the interest of the safety of students and editors during the COVID-19 pandemic, appointments with the editor will be replaced with preliminary reviews conducted by email. The process is as follows:

- Consulting the formatting guidelines on the Graduate School website, the student applies the formatting rules to the thesis or dissertation, as usual.
- The student emails a copy of the document's correctly formatted front matter and page 1 of the narrative text either to
 - Dissertations to Catherine McKenzie or Theses to Alicia Paxton
 - The subject line "Request for Preliminary Review"

NOTE: The review is optional and is meant to catch obvious oversights, not to replace the guidelines.

Students are always free to email specific formatting questions to the editors. Please do not email an entire document. We ask students who are not graduating in December 2020 to wait until after fall commencement to request a preliminary review.
